

From Italy the Pirelli Scorpion Trail is a fantastic tyre for large adventure bikes that spend 90% of its time on tarmac. The rear tyre has a bi-compound....hard in the middle for good mileage and soft on the edges for optimum grip in the corners. As with other manufacturers 0° radial steel belt technology is applied for maximum carcass strength. This tyre does have a somewhat sporty profile and we were thoroughly impressed by it's road holding abilities especially in the corners. This tyre will last you about 15000kms and is also good for hard gravel (although it did behave well on the loose gravel roads we travelled). It compares best with the Bridgestone Battle Wing in our opinion although it does well against the likes of Continental Trail Attack 2 and other similar tyres.
